International Trade Missions:

Participating in a trade mission with SABA can be a transformative endeavour for your business. Our trade missions are helpful as they provide a means for companies to assess and explore international business expansion and investment. By joining an international trade mission, SABA can provide introductions to local governments, businesses, organisations and professionals which is guided and customised to each company's interest; your company can then explore the business possibilities of new markets without having to commit to a large investment in the first instance.

The possibilities of profitable international business ventures are endless, particularly in developing countries where the markets are also underdeveloped. Industries that are growing rapidly in markets of developing countries include (but are not limited to) oil & gas, renewable energy, agriculture, aquaculture, IT and communications, transportation, construction, tourism and consulting.

Businesses that seek support from a delivery partner, such as SABA, are 140% more likely to have an increase in export sales, 41% export more continuously, 29% export new categories with 27% exporting to new countries; a total of £2.7bn value of additional export sales expected over the subsequent three years as a result of support.*

These trade missions can save your company valuable time and resources through our work to connect you with prospective distributors, agents, investors, partners, reverse logistic companies and contract opportunities. Face-to-face meetings make the best impression with foreign buyers.

We can organise:

- One-to-one meetings with industry executives and government officials, pre-screened to match your specific business objectives
- Networking events with guests from local industry multipliers including Chambers of Commerce, business organisations, government bodies and local associations
- Briefings and roundtables on contracts and supply chain opportunities
- Site visits to facilities where your products / services may be applied

• Media coverage

Our trade missions offer a strategic platform for forging valuable connections, fostering partnerships and exploring lucrative opportunities within the African market. By joining SABA-led missions, businesses gain access to invaluable networks, market insights and tailored support services which significantly enhance your chance of success in unfamiliar territories.
